Breaks the game and costly boots lost the opening game of the Ft. Smith series for Oklahoma City Sunday. Herter, after wounding the Twins off without a sign of a hit for four innings, made an error in the fifth, from which were driven an error, and the ball was driven into the air, allowing two runs. Again in the eighth error by Baumgard and Elliott allowed another man to live and score, which with Adams' home run in the sixth, made the count 4-3 for the Twins.

The Senators started off like the warriors of old in the first inning. Allen slammed the pit over the fence for the first score, and after Maag and Baumgard were retired, Hall singled, but could not reach home on Kuehne's error. Elliott came out to Robinson, and the Senators never again were close to scoring.

King Brady, Tulsa cast-off, had a very effective fast ball, zipping down the line. The day was gray and dark, and the ball became muddy soon, consequently the Senators just could not see them. Brady also had a nice breaking splitter, weaker part of the time. Likowski, the Senators' speed merchant, pitched a fine ninth for the Senators, and carried them through so fast that the Twins blinched and sat down. Had the Indians been allowed to work the entire game, things might have been different.

Ft. Smith still has his two best twirlers, Gorham and Hornsby, left for the next two games. One of these pitchers will probably face Fagan or Likowski in Monday's game, and if past performances count for anything, will be made to suffer for the six measly little bungles the Senators collected in Sunday's game.
